The Rimaster Group invests in Poland

Rimaster, the Swedish contractor of electrical systems, is expanding in Europe. Following extensive investment in its Polish manufacturing units, the Group is ready to meet increased international demand.

Interest in Rimaster's development and manufacturing services in the areas of electrical systems and control panels is growing rapidly in the European market. This demand is being met by Rimaster with heavy investments in its Polish manufacturing units.

Rimaster's staff has more than doubled in recent years, and today the Group's two production facilities – in Czaplonek and Borne Sulinowo – employ more than 600. At the same time, the Borne Sulinowo plant has moved to new excellently equipped premises, doubling its production area – an investment in the vicinity of 15 MSEK.

The investment in Poland is part of Rimaster's strategy of following its customers globally. Two complete production units and excellent logistics make Rimaster Poland an attractive partner for major players in western, eastern and central Europe.

“The move has resulted in new, efficient and flexible production lines that make it possible to meet customer demand and to create conditions for continued growth,” says Tomas Stålnert, CEO.

“Our long-time customers are experiencing increased demand due to the business boom we find ourselves in. At the same time, Rimaster's dealings in the European market have begun to make an impact and we now have many new customers who have discovered the benefits of what we have to offer. We believe that the demand for our services and products will continue to increase.
